

“Currently, digital trust is at the place that open source was in the 90s”

Dhiway is a Bengaluru based startup, and India's first verifiable data exchange platform, founded by technologists with extensive experience in building open source projects that scale. The company has joined the Trust over IP (ToIP) Foundation as a founding steering member. Satish Mohan, founder and CTO of Dhiway, in an exclusive chat with Sreejani Bhattacharyya of OSFY, discusses this move and how important digital trust is in today's world.
