

“Jobs are aplenty for people with expertise in open source technologies!”

Dr Mendus Jacob, managing director and CEO of IPSR Solutions

Although South India has an edge when it comes to the adoption of open source technology, other parts of the country are not far behind. What is really a concern for the IT industry is the dearth of open source professionals. Sadly, open source technology is yet to penetrate deep into our education system, but certifications help to get those interested more employable.

Diksha P Gupta from Open Source For You spoke to Dr Mendus Jacob, managing director and CEO of IPSR Solutions, and found that there are enough jobs for open source professionals but certain employability factors need to be worked upon. Excerpts: