

You said it...

The August edition of LFY was SUPERB!

I just read your August issue and I really appreciate the work you have done to put together this edition on security. It was great to read Visiting Netfilter, Securing Apache, and also Using Likewise to Integrate Linux with MS Active Directory. Such articles will definitely be of great help—both for the novice as well as power users.

I would like to suggest that you limit the illustrations in an article so that there is more space left for effective presentation of other elements like screenshots and code. Also, please increase the font size of code that is published in many of the articles. Currently, the size is too small and hence not readable at all.

Hope you will improve upon these aspects in the forthcoming edition.

ED: Many thanks to you for your words of appreciation. We are really glad that you liked the August edition of LINUX For You.

Regarding the design and layout of the articles, your suggestions are valid. We will definitely evaluate the design of all articles carefully, keeping these considerations of readability in mind. We have, in fact, increased the font size of the code, with effect from this edition.

The perfect magazine on Linux and open source

Today, while buying another magazine, my eyes fell on LINUX For You. I have been searching for such a magazine for quite some time. Good job!

—Devakrit Bagchi, de.logics@gmail.com

ED: Thanks for this pat on the back. We are thrilled to know that you found the magazine good. We will carry on in our efforts to make the magazine better and better, and we hope you will continue to enjoy the magazine and share your valuable feedback with us.

It was great to be @ OSI 2010!

Your recently organised event, Open Source India 2010, has been a wonderful and informative experience for me and my team. You can surely expect our participation and continued support in future editions of Open Source India, as well.

—Gokul Muralidharan, gokul.muralidharan@aspiresys.com

ED: Dear Gokul, many thanks for the support and kind words of appreciation. It is because of the support of people like you that we could attempt to organise OSI 2010 on this scale. We look forward to receiving your continued support and also your suggestions for improving the event further.

Last month, I attended your three-day event—OSI Days 2010. I must congratulate you on the wonderful show that you put together at the Chennai Trade Centre! I look forward to attending the next edition of the event! Is it possible for you to send a CD of the event's coverage? If it is available online, kindly share the link.

—Sunil, sunil@systica.com

ED: Thanks! It's made our day to receive a response like yours. Such words of encouragement will drive us to go the extra mile to make the event even bigger and better, next year. As regards the event's coverage, you can catch a glimpse of the event on the OSI website at the following link: <http://www.flickr.com/photos/osidays>. We will shortly be uploading videos of the event too on the website. Some of these might also find their way into the LFY CD or DVD.

And, yes, we also look forward to meeting you at OSI 2011, which will be the seventh edition of the event.

About reaching the open source community

Hi! I am from Kerala. I am studying electronics engineering at a government engineering college in Idukki. We have a Linux user group in our college. We would like to improve our work in the field of open source. Can you help us connect with Keralites who are active in this domain so that we are able to consolidate our knowledge base?

—Ajmal, ajuuscrap@gmail.com

ED: We are glad to know about your interest in Linux and open source. I wonder if you know that we have over 34,000 registered users on LINUX For You's Facebook fan page (<http://www.facebook.com/LinuxForYou>).

You can also subscribe to that page and reach thousands of Linux and open source enthusiasts, not just in Kerala but from across the globe. By being part of this community you will not only benefit from the collective pool of information and knowledge, but can also get access to the latest information from across the world of Linux and open source.

You may also send us your specific queries at lfyedit@efyindia.com. We will try our best to address them.

Regarding LFY DVDs and CDs

I am a regular subscriber of LFY. It is one of the best magazines for beginners as well as experts. The DVD and CD content is also useful and always makes me wait eagerly for the next edition.
