

YOU SAID IT

ED: Lovely poem Uday! You have blended technology and creativity brilliantly. Thanks for sharing it with us. We would be posting your poem on our Facebook platform, www.facebook.com/LinuxForYou, so that the larger community that is enthusiastic about open source has the pleasure of reading it as well.

And now, a request from us! You clearly have a very interesting style of writing as is evident in your poem. It would be great if you could write for our magazine. You never know, you may emerge as one of our star authors!

Regarding the DVDs

The DVD of the June 2012 issue of LFY was awesome. You finally delivered 64-bit and there were no unwanted server-editions and rescue CDs.

The LFY DVD should include certain distros at least once in a year, namely, Knoppix, Gentoo system_rescue_CD, Clonezilla, etc. Please think about these recovery distros. Recently, Mageia made it to the Top 10 in Distro-watch. It surely deserves some attention.

I have one more suggestion. Facebook has a privacy issue; hence, not everyone is comfortable with it. How about making an IRC channel? Maybe #LFY or something similar... Readers can ask questions on that channel and discuss the magazine's content easily. It would be like involving the entire LFY family! Though there are channels for individual distros, readers will surely get some extra guidance and can also join in to chat. I find Facebook very restrictive.

ED: We are pleased to know that you liked the contents of the DVD this time. We have made a note of your suggestions for the forthcoming DVDs as well!

We do agree that with the current Facebook settings, there are bound to be certain restrictions, like lack of privacy, inability to chat, etc. We will consider your suggestions for a more focused social networking platform for LFY in the coming months.

An iPhone or iPad app for LFY?

I am a subscriber of LFY and wanted to know if there is an LFY app for the iPhone or iPad.

—Saleem Ahmed Khan, khan.saleemahmed@gmail.com

ED: To read LFY on the iPad and on Android devices, we suggest that you visit: <http://green.efyindia.com>. We do not yet have a free iPad app for LFY subscribers. We only have the ezine service. However, we are trying to build an app that would bridge this gap.

Android wasn't 'unleashed' in the June issue!

Nitish Bangera:

This month's issue was a bit disappointing for me. When I started reading, I expected to find articles on installing Android on a touch screen phone, Android's prerequisites, etc, and hence for me, Android wasn't quite 'unleashed' at all in this issue. The articles were good but the title wasn't entirely justified.

LINUX For You: Thanks a lot for your feedback, Nitish! We are sorry we couldn't meet your expectations and that the title was a let down. We will certainly be more cautious with the content and the cover titles in our forthcoming editions. And yes, do continue sharing your suggestions with us. It would only motivate us to do better!

The June issue rocked!

Vivek Mishra:

Thanks a lot to the LFY team! Finally I have a great LFY (June 2012) edition on Android. I would also like to make a request. Please try and include some articles on Linux/UNIX network programming as well.

LINUX For You: Thanks for your encouraging words Vivek! And thanks for your suggestion, as well. We shall certainly try and carry some articles on Linux/UNIX network programming in our forthcoming editions.
