

Pegasystems Plans to Double its Headcount of Developers in India!

India's vast pool of developers represents an attractive business proposition to many multinational firms, and Pegasystems Inc is no exception. This US-based company entered India in 2007, with the idea of hiring the best talent from the developer community. Pegasystems has grown since then. The company has its strategies in place as India remains one of its key focus areas. Kamya Kandhari from the Open Source For You team caught up with Mike Pyle, senior vice president, engineering, Pegasystems Inc, at the firm's recently concluded Pega Developers' Conference and discussed its plans for expanding its development facility in the country.
