The open source angle

Open source is already a hot trend and the day is not far when it will be the biggest driver of cloud computing in India. With Indian companies adopting open source technology on a larger scale to cut costs, open source cloud computing too is gaining momentum, feels Vijay Nayani, director, Linux Lab, Pune. "For open source professionals, there is a vast scope in this stream. About 30 to 40 per cent of companies are deploying the open source cloud platform OpenStack, and are hiring open source professionals too. I feel that this is the best time for open source professionals to ride the cloud bandwagon and make a career out of it. The demand for open source cloud experts will only rise rather than plummet," says Nayani.

Money wise

As the demand for cloud computing experts grows, what can one expect in terms of remuneration? Gauri Alavarthi, director, Sibyl Solutions, Bengaluru, says, "It all depends on your experience and skills or expertise. The average salary for starters can begin with Rs 10,000 per month, but if you have the right skillsets, salaries can go up to Rs 15-20 lakhs per annum. Jobs in cloud computing are hot indeed and will grow exponentially."
