

Rahul Krishna Gupta, head, Technology Sales Specialist, Novell India, delivering the keynote at the CIO Summit

Prabhakar Kandasamy, director, Continuing Product Development, VMware, talking about 'Cloud strategy with VMware'

Gil Yehuda, director of open source, Open Standards, Yahoo! Inc, emphasising on the need to use open source to commoditise technology

The panel discussion on 'The Competitive Advantage of Using Open Source In Business' led by panel chair, Rama Ramkrishna (sitting in centre), director, Software Engineering, Dell India R&D Centre. Other panellists include (L-R) Varad Gupta, CTO, Keen & Able Computers; Jyothi Bacche, head, Open Source Practices, MindTree; Gil Yehuda, director of open source, Open Standards, Yahoo! Inc; Venkat Mangudi, open source evangelist and founder, Venkat Mangudi Consulting

Madan Mohan M, chief architect, 3i Infotech (R), being felicitated on being the host of the CIO Summit—an open platform for IT leaders

Sriram Saroop, product manager, Google, delivering the keynote on Day 3 on 'Simplify OSS Development'

Muthu Subramanian, independent consultant at Novell, Bengaluru, speaking on the topic 'Android device drivers'

Divyanshu Verma, engineering manager, Dell India R&D Centre, Bengaluru, speaking on the open stack cloud in the SMB space

Surya Prabhakar of Dell R&D Centre demystified the concept of open source mobile virtualisation using Skyeye

R Prasanna Venkatesh of Huawei, India, speaking on 'NewSQL: For 'SPRAIned' DBMS'

Ashutosh Bapat of EnterpriseDB speaking on 'Postgres-XC, Write-scalable, Synchronous Multi-master PostgreSQL Cluster with Shared Nothing Approach'

Sanil Kumar, leader, Architecture Team for the Linux Domain, Huawei, India, sharing tricks related to intelligent failure prediction on Linux systems