

YOU SAID IT

Suggestions for linuxforu.com

I am a regular reader of LINUX For You magazine.

Whenever I get some free time in the office I start reading your articles online on www.linuxforu.com. I have two suggestions to make regarding your website:

1. I feel the website takes too long to load. Even in my office where the Internet speed is reasonably fast, it takes a lot of time to open an article. It would have been really nice if there was a lightweight version of the website comprising the magazine content along with important options like search, article index and so on.
2. It would be more helpful if there were search options on the website that enabled users to search for articles based on the edition the article first got published in. Consider this scenario: If I am reading an article from the April 2010 edition of the magazine (hard copy) while I am at home and I want to refer to the same article, online, at office, it would be easy for me to search for the article under the April 2010 issue. Currently, if I don't remember the exact title of the article, there is no way to locate the article, quickly, on the website.

If implemented, I am sure these improvements will help in providing a better user experience to many of your readers.

ED: We are glad that you took the time to share these observations with us. We will try to evaluate and address the first issue highlighted by you as soon as possible with the help of our Web team.

We are already working on creating the ezine version of the magazine. So, hopefully, the second issue, too, will get addressed, shortly.

Please do keep sharing your suggestions/opinions/ideas with us in the future too. This helps us in understanding our readers' expectations and to make our plans keeping their interests and suggestions in mind.

A reader's wish list!

I am a BE CSE student. I recently read the January 2011 edition of the magazine, accidentally. Since then, I have been reading all the issues of LFY with great interest. I would like to thank the whole team behind LFY for introducing many people to the world of FOSS. I am a FOSS lover and the magazine helps me a lot in learning about what's new in this domain. I heartily congratulate LFY for this work.

As an ardent reader, I have a wish list too, which goes as follows:

1. It would be good if you publish introductory articles on different subjects for Linux newbies. This will help in introducing more and more people to the world of FOSS.
2. I would also like to request for an article series on scripting languages, such as Perl, Python, etc.
3. Kindly include more security-related articles like your ongoing series titled 'Securing Apache', which can help both security professionals and common users.

4. Please provide a Backtrack DVD with any of the forthcoming issues. I read someone else's request for it too.

ED: Dear Vivek, thanks a lot for your encouragement and appreciation for the LFY team. We are glad that you find the content informative and engaging. As regards Points 1 and 3 from your wish list, we always try and include a couple of articles for newbies, apart from a few on network monitoring and security in each edition of LFY. This edition is also based on the theme of network management, security and monitoring. So you will find many articles on network and server monitoring tools, and the related best practices.

As regards the remaining two points, we will surely try and address these in our forthcoming editions. In fact, we are planning to include Backtrack 5 in the LFY DVD next month. So don't miss the next edition! :-)

Query regarding the LFY CD

Usually there is one DVD and one CD with every edition of LFY. But to my
