

RAPOO launches ultra-slim Bluetooth keyboard—the E6100

RAPOO, the maker of wireless peripheral products, has announced the launch of the E6100, an ultra-thin Bluetooth keyboard with wireless connectivity for up to 10m. The E6100 keyboard connects via Bluetooth 3.0 technology and does not require any wire or receiver. Apart from notebooks and desktops, the E6100 is also compatible with all generations of Windows gadgets, Macs, iPad, iPad2, iPad3, iPhone and many Android devices. With a compact size of 288mm x 110mm, the keyboard works on 2 AAA alkaline batteries. At the launch, Sunil Srivastava, sales and marketing manager at RAPOO India said, "We have seen customers struggling with many of the latest touch screen technologies, when they have to type long documents. They usually tend to get back to their laptops and desktops. With the E6100 keyboard, any one can just switch on the Bluetooth functionality of their device and instantly get started with their work. It's a compact, slim and eye catching keyboard which customers can choose to carry along within their bag."
