

Android Smartphones for On-The-Move Executives

Android smartphones are making steady inroads into the business sphere across the globe. More and more organisations now prefer to dole out smartphones instead of laptops or tablets for on-the-move executives. With a plethora of Android smartphones available in the market, choosing a new one can be a daunting task. We attempt to bring you a quick guide that might help you in buying a device that is in line with your needs.

If you are constantly on the move, you probably feel drained out lugging your heavy laptop on incalculable visits to your clients. It's time to move beyond bulky laptops and go in for a lightweight, portable smartphone that caters to your business requirements. There are quite a few options that offer you almost everything that a laptop or a tablet does, for business trips. These let you read, forward and reply to emails in a jiffy. You can track conversations on Facebook and Twitter and interact with your prospective clients. You can use the smartphone to make important calls, surf the Internet, access your business applications, edit documents, take notes, make presentations, etc. Your smartphone also lets you capture significant photos at events and you can post them online without having to wait until you get to a computer or laptop. Above all, these feature-rich smartphones are stocked with great tools and connectivity features that will enhance your business trip. Here's a guide that you can refer to while buying a smartphone for yourself. So, let's take stock of the smartphones that are making waves in the Indian market...

Things to look for...

- Ensure that you have good e-mail connectivity: Smartphones are not just portable, but they score brownie points when it comes to connectivity in all aspects. So if you are a business executive, ensure that your smartphone supports the push mail feature and multiple e-mail accounts.