

ProjectLibre: The old favourite

If you enter the hourly rate, material usage and fixed costs in this tool, you can generate a report showing planned cost, actual cost and remaining cost. ProjectLibre also has the ability to do basic earned value costing (EVC). In order to see these reports, make sure you have created a baseline for the project, you have updated the progress on tasks with '%' completed, and you have set a status date.

There is a user guide in the form of a publicly shared Google Docs for version 1.3. You can browse the discussion forum for additional clarifications. You can also ask questions in the discussion forum, though you will have to register first with your email address. There are also Web and video tutorials posted by other users.
