

"LOOK FOR OPPORTUNITIES TO PARTNER, RATHER THAN BUILD THE ENTIRE SOLUTION ON YOUR OWN"

Innovation leads to disruptions that often transform our world. Today, we look to startups as a crucial innovative force that can address real-life challenges that have not yet been attended to. However, product-driven technology startups in India are often hampered by numerous challenges in the ecosystem. What will it take for them to overcome these obstacles and create valuable IP? Paromik Chakraborty of the EFY Group speaks with Somshubhro (Som) Pal Choudhury, a partner at Bharat Innovation Fund, an early stage venture fund for deep tech and IP-led technology startups, to get that answer. The interview also gives readers an insight into how the fund plans to support the Indian startup ecosystem as it evolves.
