Affordable and light Bluetooth headphones from Motorola

Motorola has introduced its latest Bluetooth headphones in India, called the Motorola Pulse Escape. The light and pocket-friendly headphones offer the latest features in this price segment. Designed with 40mm oversized drivers, the headphones offer an effective noise isolation and immersive music experience. The foldable ear-cup design enables users to carry them with comfort and style. On the battery front, the device offers 10 hours of playtime on a single charge, and up to two hours of playtime with just a 30-minute charge.

The headphones feature A2DP (Advanced Audio Distribution Profile), HFP (Hands Free Protocol) and AVRCP (Audio/Video Remote Control) profiles. They are compatible with all Android and Apple smartphones and tablets, and support the related voice assistants. They also come with integrated multi-point technology that allows them to be connected to up to two smartphones at the same time. The device offers an 18.2 metre range, Bluetooth 4.2 connectivity and a 3.5mm headphone jack.

The Motorola Pulse Escape headphones are available in black and white, online and at retail stores.

Palm-sized pocket printer from Hewlett Packard

Hewlett Packard, a global leader in the printer, laptop and PC space, has launched a palm-sized printer in India – the Sprocket. This tiny printer allows users to take physical copies of photographs stored in their mobile phones.

Smartphones are now the default and instantly available device for taking pictures of most important events, trips and memorable moments. The Sprocket enables users to take print copies of images from their smartphones – anywhere and at any time. It is compatible with both Android and iOS devices, and can be connected via Bluetooth.

Apart from printing pictures, the device can also be fun for kids as it can convert images into funky stickers. The device uses a special zinc technology photo paper, which easily
